Rhine walking: Rüdesheim -Koblenz

CASTLES, VINEYARDS AND CULINARY DELIGHTS

When it comes to wine, the Rheinlanders know what they are talking about! Do the same and embark on a journey to the noble grape juice on the Rheinsteig hike - and of course to pure hiking enjoyment! The Rheinsteig, a full 320 kilometres long, is one of Germany's most popular hiking trails, and the stages between Rüdesheim and Koblenz is particularly worth seeing and hiking. Vineyards line the route, as do castles, palaces and monasteries. The villages where you stay overnight are characterised by half-timbered facades and genuinely warm hospitality. All the more reason to round off an enjoyable day of hiking in the evening with a glass of Rheingau Riesling.

Details about the hiking tour on the Rheinsteig

The Romans already know that the central Rhine valley was perfect for growing wine. They paved the way for today's successful winegrowers by painstaking constructing wine terraces. Today the Rheinsteig route leads largely across winegrower's paths, and traces of the Romans can be seen in abundance. What can you find here aside from wine? Naturally the impressive landscape and a particularly high amount of castles and palaces. Our tip: This tour can also be booked as a walking holiday with a dog.

The highlights of the Rheinsteig hike at a glance

- Germany's most beautiful hiking trail: The Rheinsteig has been voted Germany's most beautiful hiking trail several times and certainly not without reason. From the natural routing to the cultural sights, the Rheinsteig is a delight for hikers.
- Hiking on wine trails: Wine not only leaves its mark in the form of fine wines, but also on secluded hiking trails. For the most part, the Rheinsteig between Rüdesheim and Koblenz leads along idyllic winegrowers' paths.

• Historic castles: The term "Rhine Romanticism" is no coincidence - it describes the architectural style of many castles in the region, but also the prevailing attitude to life. Numerous castles and palaces line your path and are places where it is worth taking a short break.

Things to know about hiking the Rheinsteig

Let's start with your own journey to Rüdesheim. The next few days will be sporty. On each day of your hiking holiday, you can expect varied hikes of between 13 and 21 kilometres. A good basic level of fitness is an advantage, especially for the ascents and descents to the heights of the Middle Rhine Valley. By the way, you don't need to worry about your suitcases with Eurohike. They will be brought to your new accommodation every day, so you only need to take your daypack.
